Briggs

Will we ever forget last fall when we twelve Briggadiers arrived to begin our final year at Lasell!

We always intended to study, but with Gina's cry, "Fourth for bridge," a thunderous stampede for the smoker could be heard. We can still hear Adelaide's eager questioning every time Kay went out, and can remember how happy we were for Lynn when she left for a week at home.

Hardly a night went by that Margie and Bunny didn't write their letters, or that Polly failed to consult her twelve Mr. Anthony's. Memorable still is the trouble Dotty went through to wake Lindy, our house president, for her 8:30 classes. Good work, Dotty!

We had our moments of agitation, too, especially when THE telephone call from Florida for Dru went to the wrong house. However, tense moments became hilarious with Dolly's never failing wit and Stony's contagious laughter to spice things up.

There wasn't a moment we spent together that we'll ever want to forget, and we only hope that next year's Briggadiers will take away with them an equal share of pleasant memories and satisfying friendships.

Cushing

We were a small house of only nine regular occupants, but, oh, the visitors we had!

Hap was our house president and did a wonderful job of keeping us all content. That smile of hers was, in some ways, responsible for our getting for the first time a smoker in Cushing.

We're sure that the pictures on the dresser smiled at the antics of Barry and Loiz as much as Jimmy did. And those on Jimmy's dresser, probably had many a laugh over the latter's complicated "problems."

Marion was forever getting mail from all points of the compass, while Al could usually be found catching up on her last-minute studying, or practicing on the piano. Eunie, who patiently awaited the day when Tommy would come home, was Cushing's happy bride; Bobbie's favorite topic was a certain lieutenant.

And we remember Naomi's sensational room, decorated with gorgeous pictures from a certain well-known magazine.

This was Cushing; this was fun!

Gardner

France has its Versailles, England its 10 Downing Street, but Lasell has its Gardner, and Gardner this past year had its many and interesting occupants.

We remember B.J.'s unique touch with the curlers; our beautiful blonde, Betty Groth; Rina, always smiling; and Pat, Betty and Joan yelling, as usual, for a "fourth for bridge." The gal with the Cape-bound suitcase was Pat Otis, and, had we looked inside the valise, we'd probably have found Mac. Who will ever forget Connie, forever rushing for the smoker, or House President Lynn Babbitt, wearing that very important diamond?

And there was Frankie, perennially dashing for one of her many phone calls, and Broadie, getting off her daily letter to the Air Corps to the accompaniment of the none-too-dainty thumpings of Pratt, Wink, Overton and Calderwood, as they did their glamourizing push-ups. The three tall gals who stood by the door handing out free road maps were Prie, Flo and Marge. We remember, too, Sis with her sewing and Joyce, who had to indulge in a bit of malaria to convince blind dates she was from Puerto Rico.

The miracle of Gardner was Doris Wittman's eternal suntan.

Quancie, running off to her inevitable music lesson, was our own streak of lightning. The nicely tapered nails and the straight posture were Bernie Coyne's. Her roommate, Jo Ross, got all A's. And what can we say about Blondie except that "The weather's fine for flying"?

We like to recall the popular first floor room avec la vic which belonged to Barb Birnbaum and LAMP Editor, Em Gilbert. And we'll never forget Foehr who kept the Gardner girls hysterical from morn 'til night.

It was a good year.

Clark

There was never a dull moment in Clark Cottage!

Jane managed to keep us cheerful with her piano playing, while roomie, Pat, frequented the smoker. Pris was the girl for whom the telephone bell tolled most frequently, and Fran was famous for her wild stories. Jo and Connie were commonly known as the 10:30 kids; their third member, Ellie, was the unforgettable cook of the crowd.

Nor can we forget the "top shelf of Clark Closet" where even the mice attended the parties. There, Carol could be found writing her daily letters or reading the latest best seller. Each night in Room 10 the homework was shoved aside while Ruth and Penny faithfully wrote letters to the Paratroops and Marine Corps respectively, to the accompaniment of Cookie's terrific torch songs. Brady's easy-going nature, Kelly's Irish smile and manner, and House President Clemmie's French temperament synchronized perfectly and made the third floor a gay and happy place in which to live.

Our newly acquired smoker was our pride and joy, and how we did frequent the kitchen! We Clarkites loved to eat!

The important thing is that we enjoyed not only ourselves, but each other, as well.

Pickard

September, 1944, saw the beginning of many pleasant memories of our year's sojourn in Pickard House. Now we recall with happiness the Friday night smell of spaghetti, our tea parties with Miss Goodrich on rainy days, the rush to the smoker at 9:15 each evening, our study hour parties, and the fun and laughs we enjoyed together.

Looking back, we remember Gwen and Helen pouring over the ouija board, Joan gracefully rhumbaing down the hall, Dorothy holding us fascinated by her conversation, the morning bell piercing the early stillness (and met with a brave smile from Helen Barker), and, as we pass through the swinging doors to the attic suite, the old alarm clock being dutifully disposed of by Nancy, who, thereby, gave Rita a legitimate reason for oversleeping again.

We had hopes, too—for a new smoker, more V-mail, telephone calls, a new deck of cards—even a piano tuner!

We were few in number, yes, but we filled Pickard with memories that we will always enjoy.

Hawthorne

Remember Hawthorne? Of course! How can we ever forget the stampedes to the smoker when Phyl, five minutes early, called out, "Come on; it's 9:15!" As for the smoker, it wasn't very pretty, but it certainly was the scene of many a happy hour for all of us.

How can we ever forget our kitchen parties at which everyone gaped as Mary stuffed down those indigestible sandwiches and the rest of us consumed gallons of coffee? And how can we forget the sudden crash of the piano when Genie lit into the Warsaw Concerto, the fascination that radio programs held for Mary, or the big sighs Mitch heaved each Sunday night when she came in with tales of another weekend? We'll always remember Jane, our president, and that big smile she wore when those letters came, and Chickie, a French book in one hand and a pair of scissors in the other, wandering around, muttering to herself.

Of course, there were Curt's nightly dashes to the phone, and Kathie's questionable determination to "play just one more hand." And we remember with affection Meglet, our Femme Fatale, and Pipe, our pianist and human alarm clock.

The past year has brought us happy memories, and we hope that the Hawthornites of 1946 will have as pleasant a stay as we.

Conn

There were eight of us at Conn House this year. We got along perfectly and cherish the memory of our happy life together.

After dashing around all day, we always welcomed the 9:15 bell when we went to the smoker for a cup of coffee, a cigarette, and a bit of noisy relaxation.

Kess knew a great many people, but her favorites seemed to hail from M.I.T. Ruth, too, when she wasn't studying her English Lit, centered much of her interest on M.I.T.

Nonnie was always dashing home unexpectedly, then returning late, having been delayed—unexpectedly. Many were the telegrams Rye received! But the best telegram of the year was the one Connie got from Walt, saying he was back in the states after being overseas for two and a half years. Gloria was kept pretty busy at her desk writing letters to a certain sailor, studying, and writing letters to a certain sailor!

The fickle furnace may have gone cold on us every once in a while, but we Connites were always warm in spirit.

Chandler

The least one can say about Chandler is that for the past year it was the home of thirteen students and two teachers, but that would mean leaving out the countless little things that have fixed the place forever in our memories.

We remember Dorie Five-no-trump Andrews and Mickey Yeeeah Allen for their interest in the smoker; Jean Is-it-for-me Logue for her habit of running downstairs whenever the phone rang; and Terry I'll-be-back-at... Bergeron for her on and off stays with us. The three B's, Sue That-typing-budget Burns, Phil He-didn't-call Bissell, and Marilyn More-fun Borne, we recall for their insatiable appetites.

On the second floor lived Ginnie Here-today-and-gone-tomorrow Phillips, our President Marge Olsen, Stee Exercises-at-nine Depoian, Phyl Bid-six-made-six Kenney, Lee I'm-most-upset Atwood, and Lou Hable-en-Espanol-or-else Long.

Yes, that was Chandler, but the account wouldn't be complete without mention of Mrs. Fuller's helpful suggestions and Mrs. Krause's artistic ability. We remember everything up to and including those final weeks when every day seemed shortened, and Chandler and all its realities seemed to be slipping away into memory.

Draper

We were known as the Draper Droops, but we were one set of droops that really got around.

There was usually someone in our cozy kitchen, especially on Sunday mornings, making coffee and assorted snacks for the rest of us, but our smoker, with its checked curtains and delphinium blue chairs, was the most popular place of all.

Remember how surprised we were when Pris came back wearing a sparkler? And will we ever forget Ruth's nightly phone calls?

May was forever sketching people unawares, then unexpectedly producing the riotous results. Essie was usually tearing off for a weekend. And we can still hear Fran as she received a call from one of those long-lost friends of hers!

And there were Jeff with her little poems (dedicated to the Navy), and Muzzy, always true to the Army, and Dale and Marty, forever making plans for their little post-war homes.

We had such a good time!

Casino

The Casino, a senior house for the first time this past year, proved to be a very cosy dwelling for its fourteen inhabitants.

Poor "T" had the task of getting the first floor up in time for 8:30 classes, but all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't arouse Lois in the morning!

Occasional water battles sometimes kept Roz from getting her accounting finished. There was even more confusion those nights when Louise, Janet and Hen all decided to do their washing at 7:34! Ann kept us constantly amused with accounts of her week-end adventures, while roommate Saunda discussed equally interesting topics.

"Buzz-buzz-buzz," went the phone, and Mac already was at the foot of the stairs; Betty, Ginny, Ruth and Peggy leaning from the bannister, awaited the good news.

There is so much for us to remember: the popcorn parties in the kitchen, our new smoker, the ironing board, Annette's evening ensembles . . .

It was all such fun!

Carpenter

"The best times of all were had in Carpenter Hall" this year.

The first important event occurred early in November when Nan left us to walk up that well-known aisle. Then came Open House, with Barb and Ginny greeting the faculty and the juniors with charm and grace, and Gregg displaying her prize-winning awnings.

Who will ever forget the wintry nights when Sue called for more coffee and Nicky entertained with one of her soup parties, after which we all trooped downstairs to the smoker where the crowd gathered nightly for bridge, and Mac discoursed as usual?

For a short time Doupe and Terry were absent from our midst, when they sojourned briefly in the hospital. However, we were all soon together again to see our own Jeannie take the lead in Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire.

Many were the birthday parties we had, including one for June, and, later, a double celebration for Elaine and Marilouise.

Not to be forgotten are the nights when the house rocked with the clatter of Room 14 or the evenings when Carol kept the wires to Portland busy.

E'er to guard her well.

Sing we now before we part,
We'll ever faithful be.

Mem'ries still shall them outlast,
When we are far away.

Alma Mater, fidelitas!

Sing we now before we part,
We'll ever faithful be.

BRAGDON

“Bragdon Hall—Office and Main Building.” So read the line. This was our very first introduction to Bragdon, where we were to spend our first year at Lasell. Now, to us who have lived, eaten, worked and played here, the place means much more than the sign had implied.

There are so many things we'll remember: laundry boxes stuffed with food; the eternal search for a fourth for bridge; Breck's yo-yo; Audie's jokes; budget blues; symptoms of peroxide; Sherwood's radio and Marge's elevator; Garland's and Nicky's rendition of My Girl; Janie's letters; our representatives in Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire; Darcy's cider parties; the coke bottles lined up outside Suzie's door; and, best of all, staying in bed until five of eight, before going down to see winded non-residents rush in for breakfast. And we won't forget the appearance of first floor Bragdon on Saturday mornings when the study in contrasts was amazing: those going riding wore jodhpurs, those entraining for Boston, furs, and we who were going to the Barn appeared clad in jeans.

On the serious side we have memories of Miss Potter's White Dove meetings after Vespers, the surprise of Cap and Gown and the emotions we experienced that night, and finally the election of Virginia Westerdale as our house president.

WOODLAND

We at Woodland this past year could have been described easily by that time-worn phrase, "One big, happy family." We gave each other permanents, exercised nightly (or fortnightly), raced with high hopes for the telephone, and, at 7:15 each night, crowded around our radios to listen to J. Mercer give out with his latest.

To carry on a tradition inaugurated a year ago, several parties were held in the dining room where, "Be comfortable in action and in dress" was the motto. Such evenings weren't complete without the jitterbugging of Rudd and the antics of Bobbie Baner.

The inevitable meeting place of most Woodlandites was, of course, the smoker. Besides the usual bridge game, with Phil Warburton, Sophomore President Sully, Molly Ing, and Marilyn Dixon as the perennial participants, we always had the company of a stray dog or cat. In a secluded corner the battle of New Jersey went on nightly, with Bobby Grove and Barbara Bickley on the defensive. However, conversation usually stopped when Dixie started to speak; how we did enjoy listening to that southern drawl.

Woodland became more united than ever under the able leadership of Liz Ward, who, during the latter part of November, was elected house president.

The happy memories of our year together are many, and we'll carry them with us the rest of our lives.

Winslow

DAY STUDENTS

Senior Day Students

The Barn is the place we'll best remember, for it was truly our haven. Memorable, too, will be the hamburgers and sundaes which we enjoyed at Jane's while waiting for the twenty-past bus to come along.

There were Terri, Dot and Skip, a constant trio to be found in Terri's coupe; Barb Phalen and Ellie, dashing about in their cars; Margie Snow, with her perennial smile; Marilyn Moore and her dependable helpfulness; Nan, with her glorious romances; Shirley and her puns; Betty Bagnall and her collections; and Macdonald, with her clever rendition of She Was Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage.

The life of a day hop was often hectic, but we loved every minute of it.

JUNIOR DAY STUDENTS

It was quite a change for us to leap from high school into college. There were many adjustments that had to be made, and, for the most part, we succeeded in making them.

However, life this past year has been by no means a matter of adjustment alone; much of it has been sheer pleasure. We met new friends, saw and did new things, sang, danced and learned—not only academic subjects, but bridge, as well! And there were always bowling sessions at the Ville and skating parties at the rink.

This summer will find Elaine driving about on various errands, while Marie, at the Cape, will be acquiring a gorgeous tan. Mary Brennan, with the careful cooperation of Ellie Barrett and Janet, will probably take over the Midshipman School at Harvard! We almost forgot to mention Koehnlne: she'll certainly be dashing about.

And then will come our senior year. We're looking forward to it, looking forward to seeing White (with her clever, spur-of-the-moment ideas) and Ruth (with her chemistry problems), but most of all to spending another enjoyable year at Lasell.

SENIOR CAP AND GOWN SONG

Tonight we seniors take our Cap and Gown.
We'll keep it pure and wear it with renown.
Bearing the lamp, the symbol of endeavor,
And in our hearts its flame will burn forever;
And in our hearts its flame will burn forever.
Here in the quiet night with hopes before us,
God watches o'er us.
Dear Cap and Gown, remind us of Lasell
Through all the coming years where e'er we dwell;
This night is ours while we are here together.
We'll keep it deep within our hearts forever.
This is our senior year, our goal is near;
We face the world with courage; never fear.
Dear Cap and Gown, dear Cap and Gown.
